Pearls of Wisdom

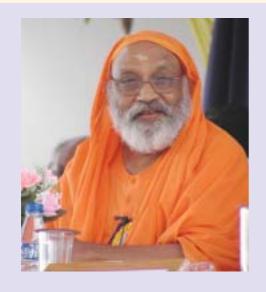

Vedanta does not remove any limitation, it only makes you understand that you are already free from all of them.

The 'I am' in you is now and here. But the 'I am so-and-so' is from somewhere with the past.

You want to change others so that you can be free, but it never works that way. Accept others totally, and you are free; then you will discover love, which is yourself.

Each job is sacred as any other job. It is not what you do that makes the action great; but the attitude with which you do it. You should see the sanctity in anything that you manage.

One who can manage his wants is a successful person; and the one who allows wants to manage—his life struggles to be successful.
